HUMANITIES COUNCIL HISTORY ALIVE! PROGRAM LOOKING FOR NEW CHARACTERS

Charleston, WV -- The West Virginia Humanities Council is seeking applications from individuals interested in portraying historical figures for its popular History Alive! program. Portrayals of historically significant people no longer living, from any period of history, are eligible for consideration.

The Humanities Council will accept proposals for portrayals of influential people from all walks of life who have made important contributions to state, national, or international history. These could include, but are not limited to: explorers, inventors, musicians, statesmen, artists, authors, educators, military leaders, athletes, scientists, business and labor leaders, activists, and others. The roster of characters currently includes Julia Child, Cornstalk, Martin Delany, Benjamin Franklin, Stonewall Jackson, Ward Hill Lamon, Mary Lincoln, Ostenaco, Minnie Pearl, Eleanor Roosevelt, Theodore Roosevelt, Sacagawea, Porte Crayon, Harriet Tubman, and Mark Twain.

History Alive! characters are researched thoroughly by the presenters who portray them. First-person sources such as letters, journals, speeches, official papers, autobiographies, and other archival materials are required research to develop the presentations. Every year, History Alive! presentations are given at schools, libraries, civic groups, museums, parks, historical societies, community events, festivals, and a wide range of public gatherings across West Virginia.

The application deadline is February 1, 2016. Applicants may submit up to two proposals for potential characters. Proposed characters should have statewide name recognition. Composite characters, legends, or mythical figures are not eligible. Submitted proposals are reviewed by a committee and any that are selected for further consideration advance to an audition of their character. Presenters who pass the audition will join the History Alive! program beginning November 1, 2016, and receive a stipend from the Humanities Council for each program they present.

Those interested in applying should contact Program Officer Mark Payne at 304-346-8500 or payne@wvhumanities.org to request application materials.
