Charleston, WV — Since 2001 the West Virginia Humanities Council has presented the annual Little Lecture Series at its historic MacFarland-Hubbard House headquarters in Charleston. Over the past 17 years 65 Little Lectures have been delivered on a variety of topics including history, literature, architecture, archeology, folklore, filmmaking, music, crafts, art history, historic sites, and more.

The Humanities Council is pleased to announce its Little Lecture line-up for 2018.

- March 25 Carter Woodson: History, the Black Press, and Public Relations by Burnis Morris, Professor of Journalism and Mass Communications at Marshall University
- April 29 Pearl S. Buck: Past, Present, and Future by John Cuthbert, Director and Curator of the West Virginia and Regional History Center at West Virginia University
- May 20 Documenting Appalachia by Elaine McMillion Sheldon, Oscar-nominated West Virginia documentary filmmaker
- June 24 Hillbilly or Frontiersman? A Brief Cultural History of the West Virginia Mountaineer by Rosemary Hathaway, Associate Professor of English at West Virginia University

All Little Lectures are presented on Sunday afternoons at 2:00 p.m. at the MacFarland-Hubbard House, 1310 Kanawha Boulevard, East, Charleston. Admission to the lectures is $10 and includes refreshments after the program. Seating is limited and people interested in attending should confirm that seats are available.
