Walt Disney Makes The Rounds at State Parks

Charleston, WV—Before Disney Plus, Disneyland, or Disney World, there was just a man named Walt. And though he eventually made his name in California, he's making the rounds in West Virginia in late July and early August.

Walt Disney, as portrayed by James Froemel of Madsville, will appear at Twin Falls State Park this Saturday, July 24 at 5:00pm, followed by Canaan Valley State Park on July 31 at 7:00pm, and Beech Fork State Park on August 7 at 7:00pm. Froemel performs as part of the West Virginia Humanities Council's History Alive! Program. For more details on each performance, visit the event calendar at wvhumanities.org, or contact the State Park where you'd like to attend.

Though his name has become synonymous with the monumentally successful company he created, young Walt Disney struggled to create an animation company in Chicago, Illinois and Kansas City, Missouri before moving to Los Angeles, California in 1923. After losing the rights to some of his early animated characters, he finally struck Hollywood gold with the creation of Mickey Mouse and received Academy Awards for two short films in the late 1920s and early 1930s. His ambitions in animation were finally realized with the 1937 release of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, which became, in its day, the highest grossing sound film of all time.

Disney is one of the many available character presentations offered through the West Virginia Humanities Council's History Alive! program as a means of exploring history by interacting with noteworthy historical figures. These programs provide audiences with the opportunity to question those who have shaped our history.

Historical characterization is the vehicle for this program. Humanities scholars have carefully researched a variety of sources about the figures they portray such as journals, letters, official documents, speeches, autobiographies and research by other scholars in developing their presentation.

This program is available to interested nonprofit groups such as libraries, museums, and historical societies. For more information call the West Virginia Humanities Council at 304-346-8500 or visit the website: www.wvhumanities.org
